Dear Lord Jakobovits

Thank you for your letter of 28 June about the Eruv planning appeals.

I can confirm that the inspector's report of the inquiry has been received. However, until the report has been published, it would be wrong to release details of his recommendation. I should in any case point out that a decision on an appeal does not automatically follow the inspector's recommendation.

In determining the appeal, I will be acting in a quasi-judicial capacity and must act fairly. If there is any new evidence which you consider material and wish to be taken into account, you would need to write to me setting out the issues. You will appreciate, however, that I would be obliged to make any such letter available to all the interested parties to enable them to comment in the usual way.
